■ COUNTDOWN... Ellie Harris and the scientists get ready to release the balloons.

Race is on for cancer cash

THIS year's Cancer Research Race for Life campaign has been launched by a 12-year-old cancer patient.

And Ellie Harris has set herself the challenge of completing the 5km race despite being told just two years ago she might never walk again after being diagnosed with cancer in her spine. She will race with sister Katie, nine, and mum, Deb. More than 10,000 women are expected to join in races in the city, to raise a total of £680,000. Mrs Harris said: "Ellie worked so hard to get back on her feet after battling cancer. It was a huge struggle but she made it. "It will be a massive challenge for Ellie to walk that far, but she wants to do it. She still uses her wheelchair at school, but leaves it outside the classroom." Ellie and scientists at Cambridge Research Institute released 462 balloons – one for each person in the East of England told they have cancer each week.

Mrs Harris said: "She sets herself such huge goals and I worry about her pushing herself too far. But we're all very proud of her and will continue to be whether she walks 5k or not." To join the race, call 0871 6412271 or visit www.raceforlife.org/centraleast ELDERLY residents fear they will be thrown out of their homes after receiving an information pack telling them their council-owned bungalows are to be demolished.

The pack, which included mail redirection forms and a pack of sticky labels to put on packing boxes, was the first tenants living on the corner of Colville Road and Augers Road in Cherry Hinton knew of the move.

Cambridge City Council wants to demolish the bungalows to make way for flats.

The information pack said: "The council knows that moving, maybe twice, is a very stressful experience. We want to make your moves as stress-free as possible. If you have any queries at all please do not hesitate to contact us."

The final decision on the future of the bungalows is yet to be made but residents fear it appears a foregone conclusion.

Many tenants have lived on the estate for more than 50 years, having moved out of three-bedroom homes to make way for families. Several say they will refuse to leave their homes. Hundreds have signed petitions and residents have been campaigning door-to-door.

Neighbours Audrey Clasbey, 82, and Irene Notley, 87, moved into the estate 12 years ago.

Audrey said: "It was quite a shock. I couldn't sleep on the Saturday night after we got the letter. We never expected that. I have been in Cherry Hinton 55 years and we've all known each other since then. I thought when I moved out of here I would be taken out in my box."

Irene said: "We all moved in together. I've only just had the bathroom done."

Rose Wiffen said the offer of a £4,400 "home loss payment" did not compensate tenants for the work they have done on the council properties.

She said: "It's terrible. I don't want to live in a flat. I've lived in a flat before."

Town and gown show

THREE of Cambridge's landmark buildings got an illuminating makeover when they were decked in the latest fashions. The Fitzwilliam Museum, Parkside Pools and the new John Lewis were sets for a fashion parade with a difference as 100ft high images of models were projected on to their facades on Saturday.

The publicity stunt was to promote the launch of Cambridge's flagship new shopping centre, the Grand Arcade, which will bring more than 50 shops to the city centre.

A spokeswoman for the Grand Arcade said: "The campaign fuses old and new influences in and around Cambridge."

But it was not without controversy. King's College refused to let the firm don fashions on its chapel wall. A college spokesman said: "The college simply does not think it would be appropriate for a World Heritage building."

The £240 million shopping centre will open on March 27.

In-debt mum stole £40k from care home's account

BY Stephen Exley

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

A MOTHER-OF-TWO swindled a nursing home out of more than £40,000 to pay off her spiralling debts.

Bookkeeper Debbie Brown – who has now been declared bankrupt – also used the money stolen from a forgotten account at Midfield Lodge Nursing Home in Oakington to pay for family holidays.

But the 46-year-old escaped jail after receiving a 12-month sentence, suspended for 18 months.

During sentencing at Cambridge Crown Court, Judge Jonathan Haworth stressed the importance of the welfare of Brown's two daughters, adding: "I don't see why they should suffer as a result of what you have done."

The resident of Whitton Close, Swavesey, was sacked in 2006 after the missing money was discovered, and is still unemployed.

SHAME... Midfield Lodge Nursing Home, where Debbie Brown stole more than £40,000.

Her deceit was uncovered after an accountant brought in to look at the business's figures in 2005 noticed 131 suspect transactions from the forgotten "entertainment account" at the Cambridge Road home, where Brown worked from 1995 to 2006.

Mara Maciejowski, prosecuting, said: "It was found there had been money going in and out of the Armed mugging

MUGGERS threatened a man with a knife in a city street. A man was walking along Mackenzie Road from Mill Road on January 23 between 9pm and 9.30pm when he was approached by two men who demanded his wallet. One held a knife towards his chest. The victim refused to hand it over and the men backed off towards Mill Road.

The first man is described as white and between 16 and 20 years old. He wore a black baseball cap and a blue jumper with either white or grey hoops on it. The second man is described as mixed race and between 16 and 20 years old. Anyone with any information can contact police on (0845) 4564564 or Crimestoppers anonymously on (0800) 555111.

Anti-social blitz

A COUNCILLOR is urging residents to come to a meeting about anti-social behaviour in Cambridge's Coleridge ward. The public meeting takes place at St Martin's Church, Suez Road, at 7.30pm tonight and will be attended by police officers and a Safer Communities representative from the city council.

Cllr Tariq Sadiq said: "Residents have expressed concern about drinking and drug taking around Coleridge Rec. This is a great opportunity to discuss these and other problems with the police."

Honorable folk

THE Earl and Countess of St Andrew's will be guests of honour at a Cambridge and County Folk Museum dinner. They are honorary patrons of the museum, based in Castle Street, and will attend the black tie event in the Old Hall of Queens' College on February 13. supposedly dormant account. Some had been put to a variety of different purposes, including payments to Barclaycard and holiday firms."

Brown was eventually arrested in August 2006, and immediately confessed, giving a "full and frank" interview to investigating officers.

Roger Andre, mitigating, said she had expressed feelings of "shame" and "remorse" for taking £41,066.

He added she had used some of the stolen money to buy "treats" for residents, and had been a "breath of fresh air" at the home.

A history of childhood bullying and her husband's affair with one of her friends had led Brown to consider suicide as a way out from the emotional pressures and mounting debts, Andre added.

Brown pleaded guilty to all but one of 12 specimen charges of theft.

She received concurrent 12-month sentences, suspended for 18 months, a supervision order and was ordered to carry out 300 hours of community service.

Bold splash of civic colour

YOUNG artists brushed up their skills to present the Mayor of Cambridge with a colourful portrait.

Pupils from the Fawcett Primary School, Trumpington, presented mayor, Councillor Jenny Bailey, with a special painting in the Guildhall on Monday.

It was one of four large-scale pieces and more than 100 different individual portraits artist-in-residence John Wiltshire helped school children and elderly residents from Crossways Gardens to create, as part of a Vital Communities project.

The project aims to promote interaction of communities in Cambridge in arts-based events and schemes.

Cllr Bailey said: "It was an exciting project and I am thrilled with the end result."

The pupils were inspired to paint the portraits after they visited the Fitzwilliam Museum last year.

The resulting pictures were first shown in December at Trumpington village hall.

But the artists are now looking to find a space to show the work for a longer exhibition, allowing more Cambridge residents to share in their achievements.

For more information on the portraits or other projects contact Susan Potter on (01223) 718013 or email susan.potter@cambridge-shire.gov.uk

Pensioners' homes threat

■ From Page 1

She said: "I've only lived here five years – it's been five happy years and I don't want to move. Why spoil what we've got?"

Cathy Stothart has lived in her bungalow for nine years and been campaigning for tenants to keep their homes.

She said: "I've made friends here. I used to live in a flat for 20 odd years and when I moved to my bungalow I realised how lonely I'd been. They want to shove us into Wolfson Way. I don't want to go."

Councillor Robert Dryden said the council was breaking up communities.

He said: "There is considerable amount of worry and concern about these proposals amongst what is an elderly and vulnerable group of people."

Julie Abbey-Taylor, the council's strategic development manager, said it was constantly reviewing what sites could be redeveloped to provide desperately needed affordable housing.

On the information pack, she added: "What we did was to take a pack we had used previously for tenants at another site and change the names over to give an idea of the sort of help residents might expect to receive. In hindsight we can see how that might have been confusing."

Options for the site will be presented to the community services scrutiny committee in April.

Spate of smashes cause road chaos

DRIVERS faced traffic chaos in a day of accidents on the area's roads on Tuesday.

A four-vehicle accident on the A10 just north of Milton at 4.30pm left a Vauxhall car from a motoring school in a ditch close to the Ely Road junction.

There was gridlock during the morning rush-hour when the A14 was blocked for hours after a three-vehicle crash.

Police closed the eastbound section between the Histon and Milton junctions after a collision between a double-decker bus, an Audi A6 and a lorry at 8.20am. The car driver suffered minor injuries.

Chris Gill, who commutes from Bedford to Milton and was caught up in the gridlock, said: "It's disgraceful – this road is a nightmare."

There were also delays on the west-bound carriage-way after a crane broke down on the Milton slip road.

Pair's gun case

TWO men have appeared in court on firearm charges. Daniel Antivil, 37, of Albemarle Way, Cambridge, and Ayman Popo, 23, of no fixed address, are accused of illegal possession of a handgun and ammunition. Their arrest came after police pulled over a car they were in on the M11 on January 27 and allegedly found a Glock imitation firearm and ammunition. They were remanded in custody at Cambridge Crown Court to await a plea hearing on May 6.

Schools meeting

PLANS for three new schools to the south of Cambridge will be outlined at a public meeting tonight.

In order to cope with new housing developments a 360-place primary school is proposed at Trumpington Meadows, another with 420 places will be built at Clay Farm and the secondary school will serve the whole of Trumpington.

The meeting, which forms part of the initial consultation process, takes place at the Cambridge Professional Development Centre in Foster Road, Cambridge, from 7-9pm.

Poor turnout in bid to save wards

BY John Morgan

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

JUST 45 people have turned up for public meetings to discuss the future of beds at Brookfields Hospital.

Cambridgeshire Primary Care Trust (PCT) has set out five options for Davison House, a rehabilitation ward used mainly by elderly patients, ranging from closure to the reopening of all 72 beds.

So far, there have been 30 written responses to the plans and 45 people have attended the five meetings. The consultation does not close until April 7, with written submissions and invites to discuss the plans at community groups welcomed by the PCT.

Cambridge Older People's Enterprise (COPE), which amassed a 6,000-signature petition calling for all 72 beds to be reopened, said the "atrocious" level of response shows people do not believe the PCT will listen.

The PCT has identified its preferred option – for a "third party organisation" such as Sue Ryder Care to move in and provide neuro-rehabilitation care.

COPE treasurer, Robert Boorman, said of the numbers at the meetings: "I think it is an absolutely atrocious response. It must be particularly disappointing, after all the costs involved in the consultation, that so few people believe they will be listened to."

"That is why I criticised the PCT for saying that people had to book. It is going to put people off."

"I am not trying to upset the PCT. All we are trying to make plain is that most people we have spoken to would rather see those beds kept in the NHS."

Under the PCT's preferred option, five beds at Brookfields would be retained for neurorehabilitation and stroke patients, with also up to four inpatient beds at other locations.

The PCT says all funding from Davison House will be reinvested in improved community-based care.

Vinny Logan, board nurse at Cambridgeshire PCT, said the level of response is "about average" for this stage of a consultation.

She added: "We have also met, or are in the process of arranging meetings with, Age Concern, Cambridgeshire Patient and Public Involvement Forum and the local authority Health Overview and Scrutiny Committee, and of course have a range of open sessions for PCT staff."

To find out more on the consultation process and how to get involved, call Susan Last, consultation co-ordinator on (01223) 884438 or visit the PCT's website at www.cambridgeshirepct.nhs.uk or.

Orchard helpers dig in

A COMMUNITY orchard is bearing fruit as it prepares for the delivery of 19 fruit trees.

The Trumpington Community Orchard Project site was prepared last year as a green haven and planted with a wild flower meadow.

Now 19 heritage apple trees are to be planted with Cambridge Gage and Wallis's Wonder plum on Sunday and February 24 by volunteers. To take part turn up from 11am on the day at the site behind the Foster Road allotments.

Doors plan gets warm reception

A CITY campaign to get stores to close the door on pointless energy waste is going national. Green campaigners Jeannie Dawkins, Sian Reid, and Margaret Miller started the Close the Door campaign in Cambridge last year and now nearly 100 businesses have signed up to abandon the highly energy inefficient policy of leaving their doors wide open. Each participating store is given a door sticker showing they are part of the initiative.

The latest company to join the fight is Jaeger – and it has now adopted the policy in all of its UK shops. The campaign has even caught the attention of US climate change activist Al Gore, who heard about it when he was in the city last year.

Close the Door aims to tackle climate change by stopping 25 per cent of heat from shops going straight out through the door, creating needless carbon emissions.

Mrs Dawkins said: "We started it because we were really irritated by the heat you could see on the pavement.

"When we looked into it there were a lot of figures available through the Carbon Trust which showed a fantastic amount of energy was being wasted.

"We thought we would try to do something about it."

Mrs Dawkins said: "A lot of shops are extremely worried about people not going through closed doors and losing footfall but we've found no figures to back that up at all. "Jaeger said they think it's done them good. They say it's more comfortable in the shops for customers." Mike Thompson, Jaeger's retail director, said: "Jaeger has a policy which says store doors must be kept closed. "This has been made in direct response to concerns from our customers and the Cambridge keep doors closed campaign which reflects our desire to reduce our energy consumption and therefore reduce our carbon footprint." For more about Close the Door go to www.close.thedoor.org.uk

Swim school

A CROSS-CHANNEL swimmer has set up a new city swimming academy.

Having successfully completed a gruelling 26-mile cross-Channel swim last year, raising £30,000 for Prostate Cancer Research, Edward Williams has launched the Cambridge Swimming Academy. He said: "There is nothing more satisfying than passing on knowledge and wisdom to others."

Force has highest loss of bobbies in country

BY Stephen Exley

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

CAMBRIDGESHIRE is losing more bobbies from its beats than any other police force in the country, new figures show.

It shed 74 officers between September 2006 and September 2007 – 5 per cent of its total strength, and more than a third of the total loss of 185 officers for the whole of England and Wales.

The news follows a call by Chief Constable Julie Spence for more cash to deal with the influx of migrant workers.

Cllr Geoff Heathcock, who represents the city's Queen Edith's ward, said he was not surprised at the haemorrhaging of front-line police staff.

He added: "These are 74 officers we can ill-afford to lose, particularly at a time when there are more and more people coming into the county.

"But with historical levels of underfunding, the only thing which surprises me is that we have not lost more."

A spokeswoman for Cambridgeshire police said: "We are intending to recruit 120 more officers this year, and are continuing our campaign for a further 100 officers to be added to the force strength over the next few years.

"To this end, the chief constable will be meeting Home Office Minister Tony McNulty this week."

New figures also show levels of homicides and firearms offences are at their lowest in the county for five years.

Homicides dropped from 10 in 2005/6 to seven in 2006/7. Firearms offences fell from 34 to 24 during the same period.

Supt Karen Daber said: "We are confident the number of authorised firearms officers in Cambridgeshire is more than adequate to police the county and respond to calls for service.

"The force does not take risks in scenarios where the lives of police officers or members of the public could be at risk."

'Blood on hands' if junction approved

A ROAD safety campaigner has warned councillors they will have "blood on their hands" if a new junction is built at a busy route into Cambridge.

Dr Neville Silverston, who founded medical charity Magpas 36 years ago, fears plans for a new access onto Babraham Road to serve 350 homes on the former Bell School site will hinder ambulances travelling to Addenbrooke's Hospital.

He is also worried that hundreds of cycle commuters who work at the hospital will be put at risk because they will have to queue for a toucan crossing by his driveway, from which he reverses out.

Cambridgeshire County Council's cabinet has recommended the plans for the Bell School be refused due to the unsatisfactory design of the crossing.

Dr Silverston, pictured right, the chairman of Babraham Road Action Group, told the committee: "You have received reports from Rod Kirkby of the Cambridge road safety advisory council and David Rutherford.

"They are both highly respected and they consider the junction to be of sub-standard and dangerous. So do the police road safety unit and the Cambridge Cycling Campaign.

"They have both submitted letters to the city planners expressing grave concerns."

He added: "Babraham Road is the main route south from Addenbrooke's Hospital and every day 40-60 emergency ambulances travel at high speed unhindered down the centre of the road.

"Should this junction be constructed, they will have to cross three sets of traffic lights in a quarter of a mile and also be obstructed by central islands up to 14ft wide."

The Bell School development is part of the southern fringe which will see 4,000 homes built across three sites at Clay Farm, Trumpington Meadows and the Bell School.

Fruitful discussion

APPLE expert Prof John Parker will give the first talk to celebrate Cambridge Natural History Society's 150th anniversary. The director of Cambridge University Botanic Garden opens the society's meetings programme for 2008 with a talk entitled Comfort me with apples: biology, history and culture of a fruit. Samples of apple products will be available. It takes place at 7.30pm tonight in the David Building at Anglia Ruskin University, East Road.

Hot under the collar

A SERIES of weekly Lent study-discussions entitled Christian Faith and Climate Change is being held at Castle Street Methodist Church in Cambridge.

The five-part series, led by environmentalist Ray Galvin, will be held on Thursdays and runs from tonight to March 13, with the exception of February 21. All meetings begin at 7.30pm.

Heartfelt fundraiser

BE A Valentine and enjoy a dinner-dance and jazz at Cambridge's University Arms Hotel.

The dance, hosted by The Cambridge Jazz Company, is on Saturday, February 16, at 7.30pm. The night will start with cocktails for two, followed by a three-course dinner and romantic jazz melodies. All funds go to the Addenbrooke's Charitable Trust. Tickets are £65 each, and places are limited.

Family history event

THE next Saturday meeting of the Cambridgeshire Family History Society will take place on Saturday at Girton Glebe School, Girton. The computer club will be from 11am-1 pm. After lunch, from 2-3pm there will be a talk by Gill Shapland entitled Finding your way around a record office: Part 2.

Non-members are welcome, and a donation of £1 is appreciated.

Hotel arson attack

ARSONISTS set fire to building materials at a Cambridge hotel. Firefighters were called to the Centennial Hotel on Hill's Road at 1.45pm on Friday. The crew found building materials had been set alight and the fire had spread to a carport roof but no significant damage was done.

Charity concert

A PIANO recital will be given by a Cambridge University graduate. Clare Hammond will return to Emmanuel College to perform in aid of the Alzheimer's Society. It starts at 7.30pm on February 19 in The Queen's Building. Tickets, £15 including wine, are available on (01223) 884031.

Neighbours fight off plan for non-profit charity centre

PLANS for an innovation centre for artists, non-profit groups and new business start-ups in a city residential area have been thrown out.

Members of the city council's planning committee turned down the scheme, on the site of the old Howard Mallett building in Sturton Street, by eight votes to one.

The "green building" was the brainchild of a charity called Citylife, which wanted to build a centre for social enterprises run on a not-for-profit basis, and start-ups by young or disadvantaged people. Café, meeting rooms and rehearsal space were also planned.

But residents group the Petersfield Area Community Trust fought the proposal, claiming the site would be better converted into an area of open space.

Planners approved the scheme in October 2006, but it was challenged in the High Court and approval was quashed.

Citylife re-submitted the same application, but this time it was rejected by the committee.

The decision caused delight among members of the community trust.

But Tim Jones, chief executive of Citylife, said: "We are befuddled by the decision. The application we submitted is the same as the one the council previously approved – so why has it now been rejected on a second look?"

College kicks out student imposter

BY John Morgan

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

A CAMBRIDGE college is on alert after claims that a man posed as a student for almost a year – making advances to female undergraduates.

The man, who called himself Tarique Akhtar, was thrown out by porters at Trinity College after complaints from students.

The imposter is alleged to have passed a note to one female student that said: "I can't stop staring at you". Another student claimed to have heard him say how he found life at Trinity difficult "because there were so many beautiful girls".

He has been warned not to come back. But some students say they have seen him in the area in the last few days.

Over nearly a year at the college, he allegedly faked his identity, illegally accessed a student's computer account and used college facilities without permission.

A fourth-year student claimed to have seen Akhtar in the graduate common room. She said: "There's a kitchen downstairs and we were all cooking a meal. He just sat on the sofa, watching us, for about two hours."

A profile set up under the name Tarique Akhtar on the Facebook website claims he attended supervisions and lectures at Cambridge University. The profile includes membership of the grad student network.

But the university says it has no record of any graduate or undergraduate registered under that name at any college.

■ BIZARRE . . . Tarique Akhtar has been warned that police will be called if he attempts to return to Trinity College.

Dr Rod Pullen, junior bursar at Trinity College, said: "There is no record of a Tarique Akhtar at Trinity College."

"When the porters were alerted to a trespasser on the college grounds, they took immediate action."

"The individual was detained and has been instructed that the police will be called if he attempts to return."

"The college's primary concern is the safety and welfare of our students and we take this very seriously."

Bizarre entries on the Akhtar Facebook profile chart the events of the last few days.

After porters kicked out the imposter, an entry said: "Tarique has started campaigning against misbehaving porters."

A later update read: "Tarique is sorry about everything and thinks that the last two days were really meaningful and blessed."

The profile for Akhtar states he was born in India, attended Harvard University and is currently working on the "Nasa-MIT-Cambridge-Langley 2015 moon probe".

One blog entry said: "One question that people always ask me is, 'Tarique, are you an international student?' Sometimes I say yes, and other times I say no. To be honest, I don't really know myself."

Road works

GROUNDWORK was due to begin yesterday for a new access road to Addenbrooke's Hospital. Motorists on Shelford Road face disruption as the route's drainage is installed. One lane of traffic will remain open with temporary traffic lights. It is due to be finished by February 15. Highways bosses hope much of the project will take place during the half-term holiday. For more information call (01223) 717759.

Firm's breakthrough could help thousands

A CAMBRIDGE firm has helped to develop a revolutionary technique that could see non-cancerous breast lumps removed by GPs.

The medical breakthrough, which is already being used in the United States, involves keyhole surgery to freeze abnormal tissue in a procedure that takes under 15 minutes.

Keith Turner from Cambridge Design Partnership, who led the project to develop the procedure, said: "This means that a woman diagnosed with a non-cancerous breast tumour can pop into her doctor's surgery, receive treatment and then get on with her day."

No stitches are needed after the operation, described as painless, which leaves little or no scarring.

Currently women usually undergo an operation under general anaesthetic.

More time to pay trust's £42m debt

HEALTH bosses have given Cambridgeshire's beleaguered NHS trust five years to pay off a £42 million debt.

A board meeting of the East of England Strategic Health Authority (SHA) agreed the reprieve last week.

Cambridgeshire Primary Care Trust (PCT) had previously been expected to clear its massive debts by next year. But the SHA board said that would leave it with a "reduction in purchasing power".

However, some fear paying off the debt may still leave the PCT struggling to deal with population growth from new developments such as Northstowe.

The SHA expects Cambridgeshire PCT to have a debt of £29 million in 2010, by which time Norfolk PCT will build up a £25.7 million surplus.

Cambridgeshire PCT, which provides community healthcare, funds GPs and buys acute hospital care for patients, expects to trim £10 million from its £52 million inherited debt this financial year.

Chris Banks, chief executive of the PCT, said: "This is good news for the people of Cambridgeshire."

BY John Morgan

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

"Having a longer timescale for repayment of the debt will enable us to reduce as far as possible any impact on actual patient services."

Cllr Geoff Heathcock, Lib Dem spokesman for health on Cambridgeshire County Council, said: "It's good that the Strategic Health Authority has agreed a longer pay-back period. But there will be questions over what has to go."

"And at the same time there will be the pressure to provide new facilities like health centres in the new settlements."

Cllr Heathcock fears Cambridgeshire residents could see standards of care suffer in comparison to neighbouring counties. He said: "The NHS is supposed to give equal treatment, irrespective of where you are."

Martin Booth, chairman of the Cambridge health branch of Unison, said: "The biggest concern is that Cambridgeshire PCT covers one of the fastest growing areas in the country. I am very worried the PCT won't be able to keep pace with demand."

Work set to start on 270 new homes

MORE than 270 homes will be built in Fulbourn as a new housing development gets under way this month.

The Windmill Estate will be demolished to make way for the £28 million project, which was granted planning permission in November.

The first phase is due to be completed early next year and will include a new community centre to replace the existing facility in Haggis Gap.

John Walton, from housing association Accent Nene, which will manage the new development, said: "This is a significant and exciting step."

Jo Cowe, chairman of Windmill Estate Residents' Panel, said: "We are pleased that work is about to start in order for all residents to be able to move forward."

'Eco-towns' dubbed a developers' ploy

BY Rachel Extance

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

SIX bids have now been lodged to build "eco-towns" in Cambridgeshire with up to 20,000 homes planned.

The controversial plans for the Mereham development, near Ely, are on the list, along with Hanley Grange at Hinxton.

Developers also want to create the flagship new towns favoured by Prime Minister Gordon Brown at Alconbury and Six Mile Bottom in addition to plans for Denny St Francis at Waterbeach, and a village of 450 homes to be built on the old Mepal airfield, near Ely.

These would be in addition to the 47,500 homes which will be built in and around Cambridge and in the new town of Northstowe over the next decade.

Planning chiefs have criticised many of the bids as ploys to get rejected developments in through the back door by playing on the green agenda.

Proposals for 14,000 to 21,000 houses at a development called Cambridge Heath at Six Mile Bottom and 8,000 homes at Hanley Grange were put forward when the East of England Regional Assembly was drawing up its East of England Plan three years ago.

The Waterbeach development, proposed by a consortium called RLW Estates, has been floated for several years.

Mr Brown announced his vision of five "eco-towns" as part of his campaign to become Prime Minister. The Government has been inviting bids from developers and the number planned has risen to 10 – one for each region of the country.

Each town is expected to reach zero carbon standards for homes, schools, shops, offices and community facilities and should be designed to minimise the need to travel and promote getting around by foot, bus or bike. They would have 5,000 to 20,000 homes each.

Councillor Sian Reid, Cambridge City Council's executive councillor for climate change and growth, criticised the proposed developments for Cambridgeshire as "dormitory towns".

Councillor Matt Bradney, Cambridgeshire County Council's lead member on planning and regional matters, said the authority had not been given much information and that the Government kept "moving the goalposts".

He said: "The feeling with officers and members alike is that developers are taking this opportunity to resurrect dead schemes like the Waterbeach one and Mereham."

Liberal Democrats on Cambridge City Council are opposing the schemes, fearing they will lead to traffic chaos and because they think that the Government has failed to invest in much-needed infrastructure for existing development in the county.

Cllr Reid said: "We already have an ambitious growth strategy in place which is beginning to deliver high numbers of homes. It is based on sound sustainability principles, which must not be undermined by the opportunistic creation of dormitory towns far from centres of employment.

"This programme risks undermining public and political commitment to the growth agenda. The Government is clearly willing to act outside the normal democratic planning processes, but residents and councillors will fight growth being imposed upon them."

Councillor John Reynolds, chairman of the East of England Regional Assembly, said if Mereham was approved by the Government it would "drive a coach and horses through all the planning regulations ever in existence".

He said the Assembly was writing to the Government to find out about the proposals and what the planning process would be.

Cllr Reynolds said: "All the eco-towns proposed should also go through all the due processes and not be fast-tracked simply because they are an eco-town."

Councillor Bill Hunt, county councillor for Haddenham and East Cambridgeshire district councillor for Stretham, said the Mereham bid was a last-ditch attempt to get the plans through.

Peter Bucknell, Huntingdonshire District Council's executive councillor for planning strategy, environment and transport, approves of the Alconbury airfield development – but not yet.

No reprieve for theatre's grant

CAMBRIDGE Arts Theatre has lost its battle to beat a massive cut to its grant aid.

The Arts Council has confirmed it is axing the historic theatre's £176,000 annual subsidy – but says other arts organisations in the county will see their grants rise.

The Arts Council's regional offshoot, Arts Council East, said it planned to invest £32 million in arts bodies in the East of England between now and 2011.

A spokesman said: "The money will be invested in 35 arts organisations – including four new additions to the portfolio – and more than 64 per cent of the organisations we fund will receive increases in their funding in line with, or above, inflation."

Cambridge venue The Junction will see an increase in grant, as will the art gallery, Kettle's Yard, and Hoipolloi, a theatre company based in Gwydir Street. The Wysing Arts Centre, Bourn, and the Cambridge-based Britten Sinfonia orchestra, will also see a rise in subsidy.

But the Arts Theatre is not included in the list of organisations receiving money.

The Arts Council East spokesman said: "Our priority for exceptional increased investment in Cambridge is focused on The Junction, in recognition of its successful turnaround and its regional leadership role for talent development."

"We are also increasing investment in Wysing Arts Centre, which reopened this month following a major redevelopment.

"Wysing offers studio space for artists working at the top of their profession and the new buildings will enable Wysing to build a high-quality visual arts programme with international artists' residencies.

"A total of 10 organisations in the East will not have their funding renewed and two will have their funding reduced."

Arts Council East executive director Andrea Stark said: "In the East, our approach will mean that the majority of our arts organisations will have a stronger, better future over the next three years. This will also enable them to work in a range of settings to offer great art to more people in more places.

"The arts organisations we're funding will place the region on the international map for its world-class arts, and these include the network of outstanding cultural venues that will open their doors over the next 18 months at locations throughout the East of England.

Arts Theatre director Dave Murphy said: "We have had confirmation that Arts Council East will no longer be supporting us through their annual revenue grant funding stream.

"We are currently in discussions with them and are hopeful that we may yet be able to reach a constructive way forward."

Shake-up of folk festival ticket sales

MOVES to prevent a repeat of last year's Cambridge Folk Festival ticket sales fiasco are nearing completion.

Officials and Lib Dem members on the city council say they are "in the final stages" of talks to thrash out a solution.

Meanwhile, Labour members are demanding that 2,000 tickets should be set aside for sale to Cambridge residents only – a week before tickets go on sale to the general public by telephone and via the internet.

When discounted tickets went on sale last May, many Cambridge residents queued for hours but left empty-handed when the allocation ran out. Tickets then appeared for sale on the internet auction site eBay at huge profits.

Julie Smith, Lib Dem executive member for arts and recreation, said: "We're in the final stages of negotiations over this, and we hope to be able to let people know the outcome soon."

Labour councillor Rob Dryden said the party was calling for 2,000 tickets, about a tenth of the total, to be made available early for Cambridge people.

He said: "They should be set aside for Cambridge residents to buy the weekend before internet and phone sales."

He said Labour was also calling for "efficient ID checks".

This year's festival is scheduled for July 31 to August 3

Controversial ex-mayor in election fightback

FORMER Mayor of Cambridge John Hipkin is hoping to return to the city council as an independent.

Mr Hipkin stepped down at the last election after he was booted out of the Liberal Democrat party following a string of controversial comments.

He claimed £300,000 houses were "affordable", and was also accused of unwittingly favouring heterosexual relationships over gay ones by the authority's lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender group after a plea for more city family housing.

His wife, Cllr Marie-Louise Holland, has sat as an independent for the past year, but plans to stand down at the May elections to devote more time to her academic work.

BY Rachel Extance

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

Mr Hipkin hopes to win her Castle ward seat.

The pair have been running an electronic newsletter called Castle Independent which is sent to more than 200 people in the area and Mr Hipkin is confident he can win the seat.

He said: "The advantage of being an independent would be that I would be able to speak freely on the issues which concern me and wouldn't be worried about the effect it was having on members of my own party. I'm looking forward to being able to be myself and speak on the matters that matter to me."

"We are getting a tremendous amount of support. The feedback we have been getting from Castle Independent is very, very encouraging. The Liberal Democrats may live to regret they chose to be rid of me. I'm very determined indeed to fight this seat."

He hopes to focus on the impact of the growth agenda and also speak up for the needs of older people in the city.

He left the Lib-Dems after council leader Cllr Ian Nimmo-Smith said he failed to meet the party's "high standards".

The former Mayor claimed he was being gagged, but the party's agent, Kevin Wilkins, told a constituent who wrote to ask why Mr Hipkin had been cast off that his behaviour had been "inappropriate" and that he "bullied or ridiculed members of the public" during planning meetings. Mr Hipkin denied the allegations.

Good causes urged to tap in CAMBRIDGE Water is offering £2,500 to help pay for community events.

Ten £250 grants are available under the Cambridge Life Fund.

Stephen Kay, managing director of Cambridge Water, said: "The idea is to help to pay for events which bring Cambridge residents together."

"We will consider a broad range of activities, anything from street parties and tea dances to concerts and shows."

To apply for a Life Fund grant call (01223) 846955. The closing date is February 15.

Easter revision is made far easier

JUSTIN Craig Education is the original pioneer and market leader of Easter Revision Courses, with more than 26 years experience.

Every student has to revise, regardless of ability, although some have to work harder than others.

Every student wants to do the best they can and at Justin Craig the tutors ensure this is possible. Small groups of eight students or less provides individual attention within a comfortable group environment. There are no mock exams or time-wasting lectures or seminars, the classes are just simple old-fashioned lessons, with a helpful enthusiastic teacher and a small group of eager students. Key topics are revised together with exam technique, essay skills, document questions and general exam technique.

Within the Justin Craig approach even the weakest student can greatly improve as well as the more able student reaching for top grades to enter sixth form and university. Many students have said how a few days concentrated revision has improved their confidence, motivation and technique.

Justin Craig students enjoy top class tutors, a relaxed working atmosphere and the confidence to revise productively. Exam success without the stress!

Courses run locally in Chelmsford and Saffron Walden on a daily or residential basis at Easter and May half term for GCSE, AS and A2 students.

Absent parents owe millions in support

RUNAWAY parents owe more than £16 million in unpaid child support to families in Cambridgeshire, according to shock new figures.

Conservatives revealed the mounting debts, which have left many lone parents struggling to pay for their children, after asking how much was owed in the period leading up to September 2007.

Under the Government's failed Child Support Agency (CSA) there are 6,000 parents failing to pay their way in the county, including Peterborough, amounting to £16,137,000 in missed payments.

Most of the missing money is owed by fathers who refuse to pay cash to their former wives or partners and their children.

In Cambridge, families are waiting for £1,182,000 from 600 outstanding cases, while lone parents in Huntingdon were owed £2,647,000 from 900 absent fathers.

The figures revealed there are 1,100 cases outstanding in both North West Cambridgeshire and North East Cambridgeshire, amounting to £2,901,000 and £3,539,000 respectively.

Absent parents owe their families £1,675,000 in South East Cambridgeshire and £1,362,000

BY Bill Jacobs

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

in South Cambridgeshire. The remainder of Cambridgeshire's outstanding balance comes from absent parents who owe £2,831,000 to their families in Peterborough.

Jim Paice, MP for South East Cambridgeshire, said: "This is appalling.

"We are not talking simply about the Government failing to collect cash but about money that should be going to families and children where the absent father or mother is not paying up.

"The CSA was a good idea which has failed to work as it should. After 10 years of this Labour government promising to improve it, these figures show nothing has happened.

"This money is vital to many families in my constituency and across Cambridgeshire and East Anglia."

Bedfordshire North East MP Alistair Burt, who was responsible for setting up the CSA as a Tory minister, said the Government should have sorted out the problems. There are 800 outstanding cases in his constituency amounting to £1,993,000.

Mr Burt said: "Mistakes may have been made 13 years ago but this Government has had 10 years to sort things out and has failed to do so."

Chris Grayling, Shadow Work and Pensions Secretary, said the national figure for outstanding CSA debt of almost £3.7 billion – half of which was deemed by civil servants to be 'uncollectable' – was indefensible.

He said: "The continued failure to get to grips with this problem is undermining the Government's efforts to get to grips with child poverty.

"It really isn't good enough that so many lone parents are waiting for financial help, sometimes after waiting for years."

The CSA collected just under £660 million in the 12 months leading up to March 2007, up from £549 million the previous year.

The agency is set to be abolished and replaced by a new organisation called the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission which will start to take responsibility for cases this year.

A Government source said: "John Hutton, when Work and Pensions Secretary between 2005 and 2007, identified major problems with the CSA and set out plans to tackle them. They are currently coming into effect."

Government backs bid to stamp out sex trafficking

CAMPAIGNERS in Cambridgeshire spearheading the battle against sex trafficking have won backing from the Government.

Chaste – Churches Alert To Sex Trafficking Across Europe – was set up in 2003 by Harston cleric Dr Carrie Pemberton.

The charity staged an international conference in London, at which Home Office Minister Vernon Coaker vowed the Government was also committed to stamping out the "evil" trade.

Mr Coaker said: "This modern-day slavery is an evil practice, perpetrated for profit with no regard for the consequences for the victims or society."

Mr Coaker made a ministerial visit to Sweden, where it is a criminal offence to buy sex, and said the UK was implementing a 62-point Trafficking Action Plan. He also promised more financial support.

Police in Cambridgeshire have taken action to free a number of women held in brothels in the county.

Dr Pemberton, Chaste's chief executive, warned that sex trafficking was "one of the fastest-growing areas of global trade, amassing hundreds of thousands of pounds".

She said: "We have to pay attention to the demand which is driving the engine of this abuse. "With a standard fine or maximum imprisonment of six months, hundreds of men in Sweden have been prosecuted to date and, more importantly, attitudes have been significantly altered.

"We need to take steps now in Britain, in our culture, legislation, education and media, to inform one another of the real human costs of purchasing people for sex."

Commissioners took dim view of leading light's gas system

Local historian Mike Petty continues his exploration of the 1838 diary of Samuel Pickwick's visit to Cambridge.

While the vicar of Fen Drayton might be lighting the world, Cambridge was not getting on too well with its gas supply. The Cambridge Improvement Commissioners had been talking about lighting the streets for years, trying to decide whether oil gas or coal gas would be the better alternative. Finally in 1822 they made up their minds and placed a contract with James Smith Hancock to install and light 250 lamps with his oil gas – it would provide a brilliant illumination, he promised. Hancock erected a building for making the gas in the Barnwell gravel pits, put up the lamps, and Cambridge sprang into light. Sadly, no sooner had they been lit than people were claiming the lamps were getting dimmer. It was something to do with the build-up of carbon, which people had difficulty in understanding, and they were costing more than he said – which everybody understood all too well. So, four years later, the commissioners sought new tenders, with the contractor undertaking to find the lamps, lay the mains, make good the pavements and supply the full service. It was then that John Grafton came on the scene. He was just a young man but had worked on coal gas in London, Manchester, Sheffield, Carlisle, Stockport and Wolverhampton. He had obtained various patents and was really the leading light in this field. Together with his associates, men from Manchester, Stamford and Coggishall, he won the contract and formed the Cambridge Gas

Pickwick's Cambridge Scrapbook

Light and Coke Company. It established a new gasworks off Newmarket Road, close to the river, where the coal needed could be easily unloaded from barges. The works were among the best in the country, with a new gasometer transforming the look of the area.

Mr Grafton bought himself a big house in Maid's Causeway, got married, and started busily raising a family. Although he still travelled all around the country working on projects, Cambridge became his home. Soon, however, things went downhill. The commissioners were adamant that they weren't getting enough light. Complaints came in at meeting after meeting, so Mr Smith, their surveyor, went out on a tour of inspection. He took a man as a witness who wrote down what he saw. They reported that on six nights there were upwards of 70 lamps in a bad state, with the Newnham and Black Ditch areas particularly poorly lit.

Mr Grafton retorted that he was producing more light than promised. Under his contract the flame had to be three inches wide – and they were considerably above that, four inches on average.

He knew how much gas was being produced and consumed every hour at the gas works and got Mr Wilson the foreman to testify that he had measured it on a Sunday night.

But how much of that was being consumed by private lamps, the commissioners asked – since many inns and colleges had their lights on that day, too.

Mr Grafton said he was taking great trouble to ensure the lights were maintained. In London every gaslighter had 100 lamps to look after, but in Cambridge it was only 80. The lamplighters went round to ensure that all the lamps were clean and correct – though one man had been discharged for negligence, he conceded.

Alderman Hallack thought the principal problem was that the men were not turning the gas on properly at the light. Mr Grafton denied this – they were told to turn them on full. But, under questioning, the lamplighter foreman admitted he never turned all the gas on in the lamps when he first lit them because if he did it could break the glass. Nor did he go round a second time to regulate the light.

That was the problem: every consumer knew that when they first turned the gas on in the evening it would blaze away much beyond what was wanted, but after a short time you had to turn it up to get a good light.

This was not being done with the street lights, so by 9pm there was a deficient flame. The commissioners imposed a fine.

GARDENING TIPS by Hannah Stephenson

Think garden not flowers for Valentine's Day gifts

Having difficulty choosing the right Valentine's gift for your partner?

There's no shortage of presents to suit garden enthusiasts, from beautiful bouquets to romantic plants and other loving trinkets. Instead of the usual dozen red roses, why not name a rose after your partner, with a Name A Rose giftbox, featuring a packet of rose seeds that they can grow into a beautiful rose bush?

The box includes a rose registration card, unique packet of seeds with a corresponding database number, a booklet on how to grow and care for your rose, a rose calendar poster and an information card. (£19.95 +p&p, www.gettingpersonal.co.uk, or call (0845) 2176382).

Add a little atmosphere to a romantic evening, inside or out, with a set of colour-changing LED candles, real candles with hint of vanilla fragrance. Each candle contains a multicolour colour-changing LED unit powered by a 4.5V battery (supplied). (£13.45, www.shop.com)

Whatever type of garden your partner has, a seed collection can enrich it further and there are some great mixes available.

Garden design guru Claire Southall has developed a range of seed collections of flower seeds for the London Seed Emporium. My personal favourite is the King Arthur collection, featuring tall delphiniums, Cornflower Black Ball, larkspur, nigella and nicotiana, combining to make a tall display of traditional English cottage garden flowers in blue, white and green.

It comes in a smart Art Nouveau-style packaging, with growing instructions and card message. (£17.50 +p&p, www.londonseedemporium.co.uk)

If you want to put the spark back into your relationship, you could treat your partner to a Passion Pack, complete with an exotic blue passion flower ready to plant, together with a supply of fresh passion fruits and a bottle of champagne. It's packed in a rustic wooden crate, hand tied with large raffia bows (£62 + delivery, available from www.glut.co.uk or phone (020) 76270800).

Orchid fans should look for the impressive white Egret orchid (Habenaria radiata) from Thompson & Morgan. Also known as the Dove Plant, the stems can reach 30cm (12in) tall, each one parading three or more blooms that will flourish for well over a month. Plant them immediately in humus-rich soil, in a cool house, greenhouse or in patio containers (£9.99 for three bulbs. Order at www.thompson-morgan.com or call (0844) 5732020.)

Fancy a cuppa after a hard morning's gardening? Do it in style by sharing a cup of tea from Whittard of Chelsea's romantic retro range of ceramics, featuring the Sweetheart Teapot (£20), decorated with red, pink and lilac hearts.

Add to that Whittard's Sweethearts' Tea (£8.50), a blend of strawberries and cream with floating sugar hearts. It comes with a heart-shaped infuser. If your loved one likes the romantic shapes that topiary can create, buy her a pair of pink topiary shears from Wilkinson Sword. The non-stick stainless steel blades provide accurate cutting when creating intricate shapes (£9.99). For stockist details call (01656) 655595 or email enquiries@fiskars.co.uk

BEST OF THE BUNCH - Freesia

These scented beauties are ideal for adding colour and fragrance to the conservatory or greenhouse during winter, their funnel-shaped flowers appearing on arching spikes from late winter to early spring in a range of colours. Corms for winter-flowering should be planted in late summer or autumn under glass and grown in gritty, loam-based compost with shade from hot sun. They need good ventilation and a maximum temperature of around 13 degrees Celsius (55F) when grown under glass. Water moderately when in growth and apply a balanced fertiliser when buds start to appear.

Specially prepared bulbs are available for summer-flowering.

Midwives risk paying a high price for maternity unit's 'hollow victory'

Sir, It is warming to read in your excellent newspaper that The Rosie maternity unit at Addenbrooke's was awarded top marks, "Rosie the best for new mums" January 31, 2008. However, before the management becomes too self-congratulatory, it should carefully examine how this accolade was achieved and at what cost to its dedicated staff and in particular its midwives! The matter must be considered urgently to prevent a deterioration in the present apparently admirable situation. Ms Birte Harlev-Lam states that the review is based on three surveys, including the views of staff. I wonder how the staff involved were selected, because I know of staff, including midwives, who note that the result was achieved at a very high price in terms of professional and personal cost, often hidden. The public ought to be aware that all is not at so rosy and cosy at The Rosie! Midwives know too well that the result was achieved at a high price in terms of professional and personal sacrifice. Just a few examples include:

■ The practice of hospital midwives working eight hour shifts without a break, largely as a result of insufficient staff to provide cover, often because of a high level of sickness.

■ The tremendous stress from being required to work alone on busy wards, caring for women with high risk pregnancies.

■ The sheer numbers of women and babies passing through the post-natal ward which make for insufficient contact time as midwives need to deal with extensive administrative duties.

■ Community midwives work long hours, with call-out situations, which frequently occur at night when they drive and arrive alone, a practice not even done by Camdoc, police or the ambulance service who have drivers at night! These extremely skilled midwives have a strong sense of responsibility and commitment, but are at real risk of becoming physically and mentally worn out – you only have to look at the high levels of absence through sickness to illustrate this point – frustrated and disillusioned.

There is all too often little or no support and guidance available to them to deal with the undoubted great stress, leading many to despair and, with no alternative, leave the service.

When I asked some of the staff at The Rosie why they could or would not take action to improve the working situation, they were unanimous in their reply that there was absolutely no point as managers would not listen and "the system" was too entrenched to allow for 21st Century terms and conditions.

All this makes the getting of top marks a somewhat hollow victory for those who work with such dedication at The Rosie's "coalface"!

Cyclists' £415k cash boost is 'just a drop in the ocean'

CYCLISTS are to benefit from £415,000 of transport improvements, but campaigners are urging the city to do more.

David Earl, spokesman for Cambridge Cycling Campaign, welcomed the news that councillors had approved improvements in the Abbey Road, Riverside and Brooklands Avenue areas, but said millions of pounds more is needed to improve the city's transport infrastructure.

He said: "It's good news on the whole. We have some minor quibbles with the schemes, but generally we are pleased about what is being done."

"But it is a relatively small sum of money and just a drop in the ocean compared to the £50 million package of improvements discussed."

The new schemes will improve conditions for

BY Stephen Exley

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

cyclists and pedestrians using Riverside, in order to encourage use of the new bridge linking Chesterton with Riverside. This will include traffic calming and reworking of the junction with the path to the nearby Tesco store. Both sides of Brooklands Avenue are to be improved, to link the road to the rest of the city's cycle network. A wall may have to be moved to widen the pathway.

Cllr Julian Huppert, chairman of the Cambridge environment and traffic management area joint committee, said: "Improving cycle links in Cambridge is an important priority."

"These schemes will link these areas into the cycling network of Cambridge. We hope these schemes will encourage more people to hop onto their bikes and ride safely and legally."

A separate £45,000 scheme will see the narrow cycle path by Trumpington Road at Brooklands Avenue moved along New Bit, after the plan was welcomed by 86 per cent of survey respondents. The route is used by about 1,000 cyclists a day.

These works will be started after an ecological impact assessment has been carried out.

Cllr Anne Kent, county councillor for Trumpington, said: "I am delighted this is going ahead. Since the recent improvements of the river crossing and the Fen Causeway toucan crossing many more people are using this route, which is making the New Bit entrance congested."

Jewel of a prize

GUESTS at the Pink Rose Dinners have raised more than £65,000 in aid of the Cambridge Breast Unit for a new ultrasound scanner. Diners were also offered the chance to buy raffle tickets by Addenbrooke's Charitable Trust in the hope of winning a special pink prize – a stunning pearl and pink sapphire necklace donated by Cellini in Cambridge.

Malawi mosaic

A COUPLE from Cambridge have written a book about their life in Africa.

Michael and Elspeth King spent much of their 20 years there helping locals fight Aids and other diseases.

Aids, Surgery and Life – A Malawi Mosaic, can be bought for £7 from the city's Heffers bookshop.

Authentic setting for Arctic act

INTREPID Hills Road Sixth Form students retold tales of the Arctic adventures of Captain Scott and Ernest Shackleton – in a venue filled with original relics from the men's fateful journeys.

Theatre students from the city college staged their performances, based on the two great explorers' journeys, at the Scott Polar Research Institute in Cambridge throughout the week. They used dance, drama and music to recreate the doomed voyages of Shackleton's ship the Endurance and Scott's vessel the Terra Nova.

The piece is called To Seek, to Strive, to Find and Not to Yield and the group wrote music for it in the style of the period.

The college's project leader Lucy Edevane said: "It's a fantastic experience, being allowed to perform at the institute surrounded by artefacts from the actual expeditions themselves – the sledges, the skis, the clothing, Wilson's paintings." She added: "They even have a polar bear and Amundsen's flag."

Funding joy for anti-bullying charity

A CHARITY set up to help young victims of bullying is celebrating a "magical" start to 2008.

The Red Balloon Learner Centre in Cambridge has been given an £8,000 boost for its funds, thanks to golfers at the city's biggest club, the Gog Magog – and a massive £90,000 cheque from a leading bank to help open a centre in London.

As well as Cambridge, the charity runs a centre in Norwich, and the £90,000 donation from Deutsche Bank will fund a third centre in Harrow, serving the Greater London area from this spring.

Red Balloon was founded in Cambridge in 1996 by educational consultant Dr Carrie Herbert, to support children who had been so badly bullied that they had to leave school for fear of further humiliation or threats.

Since it was founded it has schooled more than 100 students aged 11 to 17, and offered advice and support to many other children and their families.

She said: "Deutsche Bank has had the foresight to see that the work we do makes a difference to a particular group of children who, if not given a full-time education which recovers their self-esteem and potential, could be lost for ever and become a burden on benefits.

"Their donation will enable us to cover some of our initial costs for the next three years. To say we are delighted hardly does justice to the genuine, lasting difference which this money will make."

The money from the Gog Magog golf club was raised at the club's charity day last year.

Fifty teams, each of four people, paid to enter a golf tournament and additional cash was raised through commercial sponsorship of each hole, as well as raffles, tombolas and auctions. A donation also came from a group of golfers called The Youngers.

Theatre groups, including BAWDS, Combined Actors, The Pied Pipers, Camcit Players and Warboys Amateur Dramatic Society, have also held collections to back the charity.

Get along to the Convention!

By Nik Shelton

THERE are few bands who can truly claim to have invented a whole new genre of music. But Fairport Convention is one, and its members continue to plough the same furrow today that they started out on 41 years ago.

Before Fairport formed in the "Summer of Love" in 1967, traditional English music and electric instruments existed in two separate worlds. But after finding their feet with three early Bob Dylan-influenced albums they made their mark in 1969 with Liege and Lief – and Folk Rock was born.

After four decades, the album is still as popular and its influence keenly felt among the new wave of folk artists emerging today.

Radio 2 listeners voted it the Most Influential Folk Album of all time in 2006 and last year the band performed the album in its entirety on stage for the first time at their annual Cropredy Festival in Oxfordshire.

"Some of the songs on that album are ones we play every time we go out like Matty Groves, but not all of them," says Fairport founding member, guitarist and singer Simon Nicol.

"In fact, there was one song, Farewell Farewell, which we'd never done on stage ever. It had slipped through the net. He added: "I was personally against any kind of warm-up show, I just wanted to hit the stage with everybody in the same state of anticipation.

"Because of our schedules we only really had about three hours to rehearse altogether the week before. But I have an almost body memory of what I played and I found it easy to listen to the record and unpick our own threads. "It was a brave step and I'm very pleased we took it."

As well as marking a major turning point in popular music the album also became a remarkable milestone in the band members' personal lives. Only a few months earlier, their tour van crashed on the M1, killing 19-year-old drummer Martin Lamble and guitarist Richard Thompson's girlfriend, and leaving others injured. The tragic incident almost convinced the band to give up but instead they hired new drummer Dave Mattacks and went back into the studio.

At the time they had no idea of the effect it would have when the record was launched with a sell-out concert at the Royal Festival Hall in London.

"I think in 1969 when we recorded it, it was two things," says Simon. "Firstly it was a way for the band to rebuild itself after the motorway crash and the injuries we all sustained from that, and at the same time it was an intellectual exercise in trying to create some middle ground between traditional music and modern songwriting – to blur the difference between the two.

"It wasn't supposed to be the start of something, it was an experiment. We didn't realise it was going to be what it has since become, which is a watershed album. It's one of the few albums which you can point to and say: 'This is where something started'."

Fairport Convention plays the Cambridge Corn Exchange on Friday. Tickets are £17. To book call (01223) 357851.

Capers of a Southend superhero

SAM Duckworth, aka 21-year-old Southend musical adventurer Get Cape. Wear Cape. Fly. comes to the Junction in Cambridge next Wednesday.

After emerging from his bedroom with The Chronicles of a Bohemian Teenager – an album he had constructed using just his acoustic guitar, laptop and fevered imagination – he's taken his music on to the next level.

For his latest release, Searching for the Hows and Whys, he decided to ditch the DIY sound and call on some help from an orchestra and one of his heroes, composer Nitin Sawney.

"If someone had told me three years ago I would be recording an album with an orchestra, produced by Nitin Sawney I would have thought that sounded rubbish.

"But Nitin's great. I couldn't have trusted him more. I know his records inside out, we were thinking the same things."

To book tickets call (01223) 511511.

Silent spring

A ONE-WOMAN show at Cambridge's Michaelhouse Centre on Trinity Street on February 14 examines the environmental pioneer Rachel Carson. Breaking the Silence was written by Liz Rothschild last year to mark the centenary of the birth of Carson, a marine biologist who is credited with launching the Green movement. "The show is not a history lesson," says Liz. "Nor is it about fear and despair. It is a love story. Through it you meet this remarkable woman." It begins at 8pm.

Dinner date

AN ARTIST, scientist and a sexpot as dinner guests provide drama in a comedy chiller at Cambridge's ADC Theatre this week. Dinner by Moira Buffini centres on a book launch party. Unexpected arrivals, a silent waiter and the smell of blood build up the tension in the latest Alcock Players' show. It runs until Saturday at 7.45pm. Tickets are £6-£9. To book call (01223) 300085 or visit www.adctheatre.com

Curtain call

ST JOHN'S Players are staging J B Priestley's An Inspector Calls at the Townley Hall in Fulbourn from February 13. It opens as the Birling family celebrates their daughter's engagement when a police inspector arrives to inform them of a death. The whole household seems to be implicated as the plot gradually thickens. It runs until February 16 at 7.45pm. To book tickets, priced £6-£7, call (01223) 210737.

Sword fights abound at the Round

THE Round Church in Cambridge is the setting for Rex Futurus, an adaptation of Sir Thomas Malory's Le Morte D'Arthur, running throughout this week. The student cast, sponsored by Christian Heritage Cambridge, has undergone intensive training to re-enact the sword fights in the tale of King Arthur and the legends that surround him. Staff at the Round Church will be joining the cast to run a Saturday morning performance which is especially adapted for younger viewers and afterwards there will be Medieval workshops including calligraphy, brass-rubbing, sword training, old English and medieval food. The daily show daily runs until Saturday at 7.30pm with the Saturday morning matinee performance at 10am. Tickets are priced £5-£7.

From teaching the world - to singing

By Nik Shelton

SCOTTISH songstress Amy MacDonald - whose debut album This is the Life hit the top of the charts last summer - is coming to The Junction in Cambridge. Despite her acoustic guitar and her past trawling Glasgow's open mic spots, her inspirations come not from the world of folk but from indie.

"People say I sound like a folk singer," she says. "Although often I think the meaning of the word gets lost along the way. Folk is essentially playing guitar, singing and telling stories, and that's what most people do with their music. "The type of music I listen to is predominantly indie music. That doesn't translate into my music. You can be influenced by someone but still do your own thing and that's what I try to do." In fact, it was while trawling through the indie bible, NME, that she saw the advert which would lead to her big break. "The ad said, 'New production company seeks artist', it was as simple as that. I didn't really think anything of it, it was the first demo I had ever sent away. "I did it just for the hell of it and totally forgot about it. Then two or three months later they got back to me and said they wanted to come to a gig. Then six months on from that I signed on to Universal. "I can see that it must look like I've come out of the blue very suddenly, but it hasn't felt like that. It's taken me the last five years to write the album and record it. I'm 20 and that's a quarter of my life." Before her career took off she was preparing to take up a place at Strathclyde University. "I was going to do geography. My geography teacher was my favourite throughout my whole time at school and had decided that I wanted to go on and be a geography teacher as well. "So if I wasn't doing this then right now I would probably be coming to the end of my course, about to start as a young teacher. "I don't think that would work out very well if I was to try it now - but maybe in 10 years' time." Amy MacDonald plays the Junction on February 21.

Aquarius Jan 21 - Feb 19

Interest in the subconscious could prompt you to undergo analysis or read up about it. You always thought there was more to life than met the eye. Understanding your hidden motivations will make it easier to fulfil your creative potential.

Pisces Feb 20 - Mar 20

You've been modest about your talents, preferring to pursue certain subjects as a hobby or altruistic endeavour. The idea of making money from them feels a little odd but you should think closely about it now.

Buy into Volvo's expertise with dealership's £30 winter check

WITH severe weather set to hit the country in the next few days, Volvo is urging drivers to give their cars a winter weather check.

A thorough check of your vehicle's readiness for tough conditions is extremely important, especially as the region is set to be buffeted by strong winds and snow.

Marshall Volvo offers a winter check-up for all makes and models of vehicle booked into its dealership, costing £30. The hour long service covers a 25 point checklist and looks at all essential systems such as oil and coolant levels, steering, brakes, shocks tyres and suspension. Your car will even be returned having been cleaned inside and out.

■ COMFORTABLE IN SNOW... Volvo S80 gets a runout.

Volvo is in a strong position to offer this check-up as its reputation for safety is world renowned. The company has proving grounds in the arctic circle and it set up a testing centre in Lapland back in the 1960s, so it knows a thing or two about difficult driving conditions.

Volvo has recently released Four-C, an active chassis technology, for its S80 and XC70, detecting changes in surface and altering the car's settings in an instant, helping the driver cope with demanding surfaces. This, linked with a hill descent control system and the standard stability and traction control, can really make a difference when the going gets tough.

For more information on Volvo vehicles or to book your car in for a winter check, contact Marshall Volvo on (01223) 377200 or visit the dealership on Newmarket Road.

New A4 not just good on paper

YOU would think that something which was longer, taller and wider would keep the customers happy – at least that was the thinking behind the new Audi A4.

But a colleague who is an Audi owner took one look and said: “No good to me. I can only just get my present A4 in the garage as it is.”

It is a point that maybe car designers ought to take into account. You might make bigger cars but property developers may not produce the garages to match.

The new A4 is a sizeable machine and it officially goes on sale in the UK in April. The chassis is completely new and has a repositioned front axle, all-new steering and the latest generation Quattro four wheel drive system with a 40:60 front-to-rear split.

Prices run from £22,590 to £32,790 but these are basic prices only. Audi has outgunned its rival BMW in providing a very long list of expensive extras according to the specification you buy, so these prices will inevitably rise. Two petrol engines and three diesels are being offered at launch. Diesels form the bulk of the Audi business these days and of the 2.0, 2.7 and 3.0-litre versions I would strongly recommend the 2.0-litre.

■ EVOLUTION . . . new Audi A4.

FIRST DRIVE

Audi evolves key saloon

RODNEY TIBBS

At £23,940 for the SE version it offers all the performance anyone could possible want in today’s crowded road conditions, the handling is indistinguishable from its bigger brethren while the levels of comfort and silence are the same. Fuel consumption is nearly twice as good as say the 3.0-litre which could seldom better 28mpg. For an automatic gearbox you would have to move to the 2.7 engine which comes with a Multitronic CVT ‘box of extreme smoothness.

Audi has not been slow to take up the Citroen idea of lane control. But instead of the car tickling your bottom through the seat when it detects you are drifting across white lines, it discreetly wobbles the steering column for you instead. They take things a stage further with “side assist” which warns of vehicles behind which are in a blind spot.

Driving the cars around the unreal roads of Portugal I found the new A4 everything you might ask. Why unreal? In January at least, with warm sun shining from a cloudless sky, the roads are virtually deserted. You can arrive at a major road and not see a car in either direction! Rush hour through a modest town produced only about four vehicles up ahead. Perhaps the Portuguese go somewhere else during January on holiday – the UK maybe, for something of a change.

Steering on the A4 is very refined and its levels of silence amazing. The extra chassis length provides generous legroom front and back. The boot has plenty of space and below that there is a “skinny” spare wheel although such is the space around it a full-sized wheel could easily be accommodated if you felt happier with that.

■ AUDI’S NEW A4 . . . longer, taller and wider, which translates into a much larger interior.

BASICALLY . . .
The bread and butter car of the Audi range has been substantially improved with this completely new design. But don’t be fooled by catalogue prices, they will have you drooling down the extras list and only a few choices will wreak havoc with what you pay.

■ INSIDE . . . as swish as you’d imagine.

■ EXTREME VALUE . . . an excellent level of kit is offered in the Renault.

DEMAND for the Renault Twingo has prompted the French firm to introduce a new entry-level Twingo Extreme, priced at £7,500.

Its pricing undercuts some of its rivals, such as the Fiat 500 despite being equipped with the same safety levels as the range-topping GT.

ABS with EBD (electronic Brake Distribution), driver and passenger airbags and brake assist are all standard.

Customers can also chose to have Bluetooth as well as 'TunePoint' (for MP3 players) while a RDS radio CD with fingertip control is standard.

Buyers can also put their own individual stamp on the Twingo with graphics such as Union Jack door handles and wing badges or white or black racing stripes on the body work.

HELPING MOTORISTS LOCATE GOOD GARAGES

Retail Motor Industry Federation members adhere to a strict Code of Practice and pride themselves on providing high quality, value-for-money services to the motoring public.

The RMIF is currently promoting its popular Consumer Motorline – 08457 58 53 50: on calling this number, consumers are put in touch with local RMIF garages. For the more IT-aware, a Find a Service postcode search facility is available on our website, www.rmif.co.uk.

The motoring public should have easy access to the very best quality customer care and service, and RMIF members – spanning over 8,000 businesses – are committed to providing this through their support of a robust Code of Practice.

The Federation represents not only independent garages, but also franchised and commercial vehicle dealers, motorcycle dealers and rider training centres, body repairers, motor auctions, MoT test stations, cherished number plate dealers and petrol retailers. Put simply, as the largest trade body for the retail motor sector, we are uniquely placed to advise consumers: the RMIF is a gateway to quality services.

Matthew Carrington RMIF Chief Executive: “In addition, using an RMIF member provides customers with the valuable reassurance of our mediation service – this facility will investigate any complaint made against a member, and will remain impartial throughout. In most cases it is successful in resolving disputes or disagreements fairly and amicably.”

To locate an RMIF member, consumers can use the “Find a Service” search facility on www.rmif.co.uk or call the Consumer Motorline on 08457 58 53 50.

TRAIN AS A JOURNALIST

Journalism is often seen as glamorous and exciting but, as with any occupation, success comes only after much hard work and routine activity. However, each working day as a journalist is different and the training you receive will give you the flexibility to cover a wide range of news stories and features.

Journalism draws on all the knowledge and skills you have acquired and can give you a tremendous sense of achievement. If you've got what it takes, journalism could be the career for you!

SO WHERE DO I START?

The NCTJ is the principal provider of journalism qualifications and training and offers a wide variety of training and learning options to suit everyone.

NCTJ qualifications are what editors look for when they are recruiting trainee journalists and these can be gained through full-time, part-time, distance learning or on-the-job training courses. We also offer press photography and photo-journalism training.

For further information about training as a journalist, please visit www.nctj.com where you will find details of all courses offered, locations of study and details of educational requirements.

Child Care - it's a new beginning

Application Research Manager Up to £40k

Philips Avent products are recommended by doctors, praised by mothers and recognised internationally for providing the superior choice in child care. Our bottles, breast pumps, soothers and feeder cups are market leaders and consistently receive 'Best Buy' Awards. Our products are regular winners of the annual Mother and Baby magazine awards.

In our Research and Development offices in Great Abington, near Cambridge, we have a small dedicated group with the responsibility for turning great ideas into the products that will appear in the shops - and homes. We are regularly introducing new products and enhancements to our existing range to support our market leading position. To strengthen our team, we have created this new position.

Identifying and collecting information on users' needs and habits, you will translate these into testable parameters/protocols for research projects. You will also act as the 'user's voice' in research projects, providing user and usage related expertise during the development process of research projects. In addition, organising and co-ordinating user tests and consumer trials for projects, utilising the facilities and expertise of the Philips global network will also fall within your remit. You will also provide training on new products to our customer service teams.

With some experience in a healthcare/hospital environment (e.g. healthcare professional, nurse, midwife), knowledge of the Mother and Child Care business and related products would be an advantage. A good network of contacts in the healthcare field and an ability to leverage support from such organisations are essential, as are excellent organisational, networking and interpersonal skills. You should also have the willingness and ability to travel to other Philips centres and visit hospitals, shops etc.

To apply, please send your CV to our HR Director at Richard.McMullan@philips.com

IT Officer

The College is seeking to appoint an IT Officer to work with our Senior IT Officer in providing wide-ranging IT support to the College. This interesting, varied and challenging appointment is central to the College's strategy of providing streamlined management information systems across the College's departments and an efficient IT support service to Fellows and students. The College benefits from a well-developed, high-bandwidth structured network on its main sites with wireless broadband solutions in some of its hostels. Wireless networking is also being deployed within the central locations and the College is preparing to deploy VoIP telephony. Our fire and security systems are also increasingly IP-based.

We are seeking a dynamic individual with high-level IT skills, an aptitude for problem-solving and a strongly client-focused approach to work. Particular experience of Windows Server 2003, SQL, Microsoft Exchange, databasing solutions, and support of standard office applications is essential. A calm, approachable and warm personality and the desire and ability to establish a good rapport with colleagues and students alike will be essential personal qualities. Experience gained in an academic environment would be an advantage but is not essential.

The starting salary is likely to be at point 40 on the University's single salary spine (£25,889) and the post-holder will be eligible to join the USS contributory final-salary pension scheme. Further particulars can be downloaded from the College's website (www.sid.cam.ac.uk) or can be obtained from the Senior Tutor's PA, Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, CB2 3HU; tel: 01223 338847; email: mtb28@cam.ac.uk. Interested parties are welcome to contact the Senior Tutor via his PA for informal discussions. The closing date for applications is Wednesday 20th February 2008. Interviews are likely to be held on Thursday 28th February.

You will initially take responsibility for projects within the stakeholder extranets and e-learning programmes. In relation to project management you will identify, plan and manage the business change aspects of projects, which could include organisational and process change, being responsible for new product development, training and stakeholder communications. You need to see the 'bigger picture' and be able to manage the interdependencies between the different elements within a project and also between different projects, whilst carefully managing internal and external stakeholder groups. You will also need to keep an overview of IT development aspects, although you would not be managing these directly.

In relation to business analysis, you will need to identify, analyse, document and validate complex business and user requirements for process and systems changes. The output from your analysis will be accurate product, process and system change specification documents which should be presented so that they are accessible and understandable to business users within the organisation.

Experience of the end-to-end project lifecycle is essential and a qualification in PRINCE 2 would be an advantage as would experience in the application of a user-centric requirements gathering method and/or learning management systems. A degree level qualification, or equivalent will be required.

Closing date: 15 February 2008.

TRAIN AS A JOURNALIST

Journalism is often seen as glamorous and exciting but, as with any occupation, success comes only after much hard work and routine activity. However, each working day as a journalist is different and the training you receive will give you the flexibility to cover a wide range of news stories and features.

Journalism draws on all the knowledge and skills you have acquired and can give you a tremendous sense of achievement. If you've got what it takes, journalism could be the career for you!

SO WHERE DO I START?

The NCTJ is the principal provider of journalism qualifications and training and offers a wide variety of training and learning options to suit everyone.

NCTJ qualifications are what editors look for when they are recruiting trainee journalists and these can be gained through full-time, part-time, distance learning or on-the-job training courses. We also offer press photography and photo-journalism training.

For further information about training as a journalist, please visit www.nctj.com where you will find details of all courses offered, locations of study and details of educational requirements.

Senior Major Developments Officers (x3)

Detention Custody Officers (DCOs)

Oakington Immigration Reception Centre Cambridge

£21,031 pa • Average 47.25 hours per week
(Rotating 4 on 4 off shift pattern)

Imagine what it's like to arrive in a different country where you don't understand the language or culture and you don't know what the future holds for you. How would you feel?

At GSL, we know that people are our most valuable resource and our team at Oakington Immigration Reception Centre is responsible for providing a safe and supportive environment for people being detained due to their immigration status.

Maintaining security, ensuring that centre rules are followed, dealing effectively with problems as they arise and completing documentation are just a few of the things you'll do in this busy role. Being a Detention Custody Officer (DCO) isn't just about keeping people detained at the centre. It's also about being vigilant, versatile, disciplined and non-judgmental. Treating people with respect and consideration, your communication and interpersonal skills will be used to the full as you provide a subtle blend of safety and security for everyone at the centre.

If you can relate to others from a variety of backgrounds and cultures and you have the ability to remain calm under pressure coupled with an open-minded and professional approach, you could train for a career that's both challenging and rewarding.

If you think you've got what it takes to be a DCO, call Caroline Brown on 01954 783025 Monday to Friday, 9.00am to 5.00pm for an application pack. Please quote reference: CENDC2.

A recruitment day will be held on 26th February 2008.

Please note that these vacancies are subject to a 10 year checkable history and the strict vetting standards set by GSL and the Secretary of State for the Home Office.

Opportunities within Scientific Administration £27,316 to £36,951 dependent on experience

The Wellcome Trust Sanger Institute has an expanding scientific programme dedicated to using natural and experimental genetics to understand the role of genes in health and disease.

As part of the Institute's Corporate Services section, the role and remit of the Science Administration team has recently been reviewed. We are now looking for professional staff to join the team to support the Institute's scientific faculty in the development of corporate policy, provision of advice on regulatory standards and production of corporate documents and reports. The team also provides a pre-award grand administration and contract negotiation service to our faculty.

Scientific Administrator - Ref: CEN1525

We are seeking an experienced Scientific Administrator to provide high level support to the Institute's Board of Management and scientific faculty to support the Institute's decision-making processes and aid communication. As part of the Science Administration team you will plan and co-ordinate a variety of corporate review processes and the production of corporate documents such as the Annual Report. You will co-ordinate and facilitate the work of the Institute's Operations Committee, and other scientific and management committees, providing comprehensive executive support, including organising and minuting meetings, progressing work streams and action plans, liaising with Committee members etc. All aspects require informed management of priorities and effective co-ordination with others both internally and externally. The successful candidate will either have held a similar position in the research/academic sector or will be looking to use their scientific background in a research management role.

Regulatory Adviser - Ref: CEN1524

You will advise the researchers and Director of Corporate Services on regulatory compliance issues related to human tissue and animal research, the release of data associated with human samples and facilitate appropriate interactions with Local Research Ethics Committees. You will develop and maintain a system for capturing and monitoring information on all human tissue samples held on site to ensure the Institute remains in compliance with the terms of the Human Tissue Act (HTA). You will organise and provide administrative support for two of the Institute's regulatory committees covering these issues. You will be expected to keep abreast of the interpretation of the HTA and Data Protection Act in a rapidly evolving technological environment, taking in to consideration local, national and global concerns, and to ensure researchers at the Institute continue to follow best practice. The successful candidate is likely to have experience of working in a clinical or research environment and experience of, or an interest in, the legal and ethical issues relating to biological research.

Policy Adviser - Ref: CEN1526

You will maintain an awareness of policy developments in all areas of interest to the Institute and identify our corporate and science policy and advocacy needs and requirements, ensuring there is good communication of policy throughout the Institute. You will conduct research on policy matters, draft policy documents and manage the Institute's submissions to governments, agencies, Committees of Enquiry etc. The successful candidate will have significant proven experience of policy development in a science or research-based organization.

In addition to the particular skills and experience highlighted above, we are looking for self confident individuals with strong interpersonal skills able to relate to, and work with, individuals at senior levels, both within the Institute and externally: a biological science background (first degree) is essential. Proven written and oral communication skills with an organised approach and strong negotiating, persuading and influencing skills are required for all three roles.

We offer a comprehensive range of benefits including a final salary pension scheme and excellent on-site facilities. Further details can be found on our website www.sanger.ac.uk/careers/jobs/.

To apply for this position please email your CV (including 2 referees) and current salary details, quoting the appropriate reference number to: recruit@sanger.ac.uk. Or post to: Human Resources, the Wellcome Trust Sanger Institute, Genome Campus, Hinxton, Cambridge CB10 1SA

The closing date for applications is 7 March 2008

Perse keep their hands on top title

THE Perse School's under-16 boys indoor team managed to retain their national indoor hockey title in an action-packed final. Travelling to Wolverhampton, the squad of 10 boys from the fifth, fourth and third forms at the Cambridge school were unbeaten in the group stages before seeing off Ipswich School 5-4 in the semi-final – where Hugo Christie finished off a fine move to level the scores and Michael Franklin scored a vital penalty flick – setting up a final showdown against Whitgift School. The final was played at the National Indoor Arena in Birmingham as the first fixture on the hugely-successful televised National Finals day, billed by England Hockey as 'Hockey's Big Day In'. The Perse had already gained some experience of how Whitgift played after contesting a fiercely-competitive opening tie in their first group match, which finished 4-4.

■ CHAMPS AGAIN. . . the Perse squad which retained the national indoor title.

In their other group games Perse beat Bromsgrove School 2-1, recovered from three goals down to draw 4-4 with Canford School – Duncan Graves and Christie were the leading scorers at that stage, and Franklin and Ben Creese also scored – and qualified for the semi-finals with a 4-2 defeat of Doncaster Hockey Club. In typical fashion, Perse initially fell behind in the final, but were lifted by a fine save from goalkeeper Andrew Meredith shortly afterwards.

They struck back with Graves taking Christie's pass to beat the Whitgift keeper. Despite falling behind again, Graves hit the post before Creese equalised on the stroke of half time. Whitgift hit a third, but Adam Miller and Franklin were alert and deflected several goal-bound shots off the line. Again Perse levelled quickly – Graves capitalising on an under-strength clearance – then tapped home his third and Perse's fourth soon after. The result of sustained pressure produced a fifth goal, again courtesy of top-scorer Graves, before the team saw out the remaining three minutes of the game with composure. It was then left to skipper Michael Franklin (15) to lift the trophy in front of the NIA audience and the squad of Hugo Christie, Ben Creese, Duncan Graves, Rajen Mahendra (all aged 16), Adam Miller, Henry Campbell, George Hall, Andrew Meredith (aged 15) and Sevie Hurrell (14).

DARTS

Centre put themselves in the frame

CAMBRIDGE Snooker Centre have thrown down the gauntlet in their attempt to become the top women's team in Mid-Anglia. They qualified from the opening group in the Champion of Champions tournament, firing a warning to title-holders Royston FC. Snooker Centre rattled through their opposition at the Rathmore Club, thumping former champions Green Man Emeralds and the NCI Club. NCI had earlier set this year's competition rolling by ending Crocus' hopes 3-0, Marie Cassidy scoring 140 as she and Daphne Mackenzie saw off Jill Wardley and Chris Duff 2-0. On the other board, Snooker Centre knocked out Green Man Emeralds 3-1, with Maggie Stocker hitting 180, Tony Zwager 116 and tons from Maggie Stocker, Brenda Hayes and Barbara Biggs. Emeralds' Anne Neaves responded with a shot of 125, but it was in vain as Glynis Ireland went out on 75 to clinch victory. However, Snooker Centre were too strong in the final and eased in 3-0 (Ireland 140, Mackenzie 133). Results – Crocus 0 NCI Club 3: Jill Wardley & Chris Duff 0 Daphne Mackenzie & Marie Cassidy 2, Julie Brundell & Maureen Ellis 1 Sue Nichols & Cheryl Holliday 2, Maggie Walsh & Brenda Brundell 1 Louise Walpole & Kelly Lawrence 2. Cambridge Snooker Centre 3 Green Man Emeralds 1: Maggie Stocker & Tony Zwager 2 Gina Plumb & Joyce Williams 0, Brenda Hayes & Barbara Biggs 0 Carole Saunders & Val Halbert 2, Debbie Melton & Margaret Stephens 2 Lisa Neaves & Zoe Cooper 0, Glynis Ireland & Liz Radford 2 Anne Neaves & Wendy Hardiman 0. Final – Cambridge Snooker Centre 3 NCI Club 0: Melton & Stephens 2 Jean Carter & Tracy Martin 1, Ireland & Radford 2 Sue Nichols & Cheryl Holliday 0, Hayes & Biggs 2 Mackenzie & Cassidy 0.

Smith sparks City goal blitz

THREE goals in each half gave Cambridge City a brilliant away win as they emphatically bounced back from two heavy defeats.

Gary Roberts' men had been thrashed 4-1 by Newport County and Hayes & Yeading, and travelled to Welling with only 14 players.

But the Lilywhites showed great character to blow their opponents away thanks to goals from Michael Gash, Ashley Fuller, Josh Simpson and Neil Midgley, as well as an own goal and a late Lee Roache effort.

City boss Roberts said: "Everything we'd worked on in training was geared towards getting the midfield four forward and into goalscoring positions, so it was nice to see the midfielders scoring.

"I was really impressed with our ball retention and the scoreline was a true reflection of our dominance. Stephen Smith was electric and the whole midfield did their job, but I thought Ashley Fuller was the pick of them.

"We've shown over the last two months that we can play good teams off the park.

"Now I'm looking ahead to next season and if we can keep the nucleus of this side together and bring in another four or five new faces, then we can be a real force."

Be ruthless, Fallon urges Murray

STEVE Fallon has urged Antonio Murray to be more selfish after Histon missed a host of chances and were knocked out of the FA Trophy by Burton Albion last night. The Stutes' manager believes the striker has everything in his armoury to be one of the most feared marksmen in the Blue Square Premier.

But the forward and his teammates could not find a way past Albion goalkeeper Kevin Poole and were beaten 1-0 in the third-round replay at the Glass World Stadium.

Fallon thinks Murray needs to develop a killer streak and work up an appetite for goals if he is to fulfil his potential. Fallon said: "Antonio's got everything he needs to play up there, but he needs to get the belief that he can score the goals."

"His all-round game is good and he's got good pace, but he needs to get that hunger that all natural goalscorers have got."

"He got himself into two or three good positions and, on another day, they could easily have gone in."

Daryl Clare's ninth-minute goal separated the sides at Bridge Road as the Stutes missed the chance to take on Ebbsfleet at home in the quarter-finals.

But, after starting slowly, the manager felt his side dominated and thought Nigel Clough's men had to defend for their lives.

Fallon said: "Defensively they're a very good side – they had to be to stop us scoring. We've hit the bar and their keeper has made a couple of good saves."

"We started slowly and were giving the ball away, but then we had a good spell where they were really on the ropes. We dominated for the second 45 minutes and probably for the last 20 minutes of the first half as well."

"But we needed to get something in that spell. If we'd had any sort of luck then we'd still be in it, but we didn't and unfortunately we're out."

The decisive goal arrived in the ninth minute, Daryl Clare diverting Dave Farrell's cross into the net via the post.

The sides drew 1-1 at Burton on Saturday, Robbie Nightingale wiping out John McGrath's opener five minutes from time.

STRIKER HIT BY NEW SETBACK IN AN INJURY-HIT SEASON

DAN Chillingworth could face further surgery to deal with an ankle injury that has kept him out of Cambridge United's side all season.

The striker has not featured since damaging ankle ligaments in their final pre-season friendly against Leicester City in August and any operation would see him ruled out for the rest of the campaign.

Chillingworth, 26, has had one operation but returned to training in November and was sent on a month-long loan move to St Albans just before Christmas in an attempt to regain fitness.

But he only played twice for the Blue Square South side, who have former United assistant boss Steve Castle in caretaker charge, before suffering a setback.

It is not the first time Chillingworth has struggled with injury since making his breakthrough from the Abbey youth ranks eight years ago.

He also missed the bulk of the 2003-04 campaign through injury.

After visiting specialists, Chillingworth is set to have an injection to see if that will avoid the need for him to have more surgery.

But he faces a tough task of getting back into the first team, even if he does not have an operation, with Scott Rendell, Mark Beesley, Lee McEvilly and Lee Boylan all ahead of him in the pecking order.

Manager Jimmy Quinn said he felt disappointed for the striker, who he signed from Rushden & Diamonds a year ago with Chillingworth playing a pivotal part in helping keep United in the Blue Square Premier last season thanks to his strike partnership with Robbie Simpson.

Quinn said: "He has just been very unlucky. He did well for us last year, but another operation now would mean he's out for the season."

"Chilli has seen the consultants and it looks as if there are a couple of little fragments floating in there."

"He's going to have an injection and we should know whether it works within a week."

"Otherwise it will have to be cleaned out."
